Aquarion Water Company Offers Recycled Rain Barrels
Water conservation opportunity available to residents of Hingham, Hull and Cohasset.

Hingham, Mass. – To help save and conserve water, Aquarion Water Company is offering recycled rain barrels at a discounted rate to residents of Hingham, Hull and Cohasset.

Rain barrels are an efficient and effective way to store rainwater for later usage by collecting rain and runoff from a roof or downspout. They provide a free, ready source of water for filling watering cans, connecting a garden hose, feeding a drip irrigation system and other outdoor chores.

“Rain water is an excellent source of water for plants and gardens,” said Ronit Goldstein, Manager of Community Relations for Aquarion Water Company. “We also encourage residents to use the barrel to help towns mitigate pollution in the water supplies by limiting storm water runoff.”

Residents of Hingham, Hull and Cohasset may place an order for rain barrels through April 29 at midnight. Rain barrels may be picked up on May 5, 2018 from 10AM-12PM during Aquarion’s annual open house, 900 Main Street in Hingham.

To order and take advantage of this special rate visit www.aquarion.com/MA and click on the Rain Barrel Promotion banner in the middle of the page or call 800-251-2352 by April 29.

“Just one 60-gallon barrel made from recycled materials, can consistently irrigate a 100 square foot garden. “By taking advantage of this product, local residents can reduce water consumption during the warmer summer months,” said Goldstein.

Aquarion is offering the rain barrel in partnership with The Great American Rain Barrel Company, based in Hyde Park, MA. The rain barrels are available in three colors; Forest Green, Earth Brown or Nantucket Gray and cost $75, compared to the regular retail price of $119. An unpainted version is available for $70.
